

ANNOUNCEMENT

Early next week, probably Monday morning, we will begin to move from our present location at 606 Main street, to the new Collier & Moore building at 626 Main street. This building has been erected especially for the K K K Store and the Central Barber Shop and, in keeping with the rest of the building, we are installing one of the finest shops in the county. This has been made possible only through the patronage of the people of Klamath Falls and Klamath county, and we want you to feel that this is your shop—not ours.

We take this opportunity to thank you for your patronage in the past, and to assure you that we shall endeavor to merit it in the future.

RECALLS OLD TIME DAYS

SAN FRANCISCO, August 11.—Recent robberies of four automobile parties near the boundaries of Yosemite National Park have caused old residents in the west to recall the activities of "Black Bart," one time famous robber of stages.

The man who held up the parties is said to have been jovial, to have refused to take money from Boy Scouts and the drivers, and to have acted with much the same gallantry as was exhibited by Bart or is described in romantic stories of seventeenth century England.

Bart, or Charles E. Boles, as he is supposed to have been named, is supposed to have robbed numerous stages, always alone, in the period between August 12, 1877, and November 3, 1883. On the latter date he robbed a stage running from Milton to Sonoma, California, and dropped a handkerchief. The laundry mark on this was traced to San Francisco and eventually through it Bart was captured. It was found then that he lived a quiet life in San Francisco, explaining his absences on "business" by saying he was looking after mining enterprises.

It was Bart's habit to leave scrawled verses behind for the officers who investigated the robberies. These he signed "Black Bart, P. O. S. 1877." When the Quincy-Oroville stage was robbed July 28, 1878, this was left behind:

"Here I lay me down to sleep
To wait the coming morn,
Perhaps success, perhaps defeat
And everlasting sorrow.
Yet come what will—I'll try it on
My condition can't be worse
And if there's money in that box,
'Tis money in my purse.
Black Bart, P. O. S."

DIDN'T PAY ALIMONY, SUE FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT

Charles Hawkins is defendant in contempt proceedings instituted in the circuit court by the State of Oregon, ex. rel. Nellie W. Manning, whose husband he was prior to their divorce by the local court. It is alleged that defendant did not pay alimony fixed by the court, for the costs of the action which were assessed to him. Defendant is said to have left the jurisdiction of the court after the divorce suit. His former wife re-married. Recently he returned and the legal action followed.

MANY CURIOUS IN RED CROSS SHOP

MARYSVILLE, Cal., August 11.—The most ancient of English curiosities shops contains no more varied assortment of articles than the Yuba-Sutter Red Cross Salvage Shop in this city, and a steady demand is reported for practically everything which the shop managers can gather together.

A Sutter county woman recently donated two sets of false teeth and a quantity of artificial hair, including several "switches" and other aids to the coiffure.

Reform in the method of taxing standing timber is a problem western states must meet if they desire to encourage the holding of land for successive crops of timber. Yearly tax on a crop harvested once in a lifetime is not conducive to successful growing of timber as an investment.

During the next two months Ottawa will be the center of golfing interests for all Canadian devotees of the game. The capital city is to be the scene of the Dominion open championship and the senior championship tournaments and it is probable that it will also get the title tournament of the Canadian Professional Golfers.

HAVANA A BABEL OF SOUND

New Yorker Alleges That Metropolis Is Silent in Comparison With the Cuban City.

Havana may not hold the noise championship of the world, but at least little old New York is silent by comparison. Unmuffled motors beyond computation, train cars that seem far more interested in producing clamor than speed, bellowing vendors of everything vendible, are but the background of an unbroken uproar that permeates every nook and cranny of the city. Honest hotel keepers tell you frankly that they can offer every comfort except quiet. Even in church you hear the tumult outside, broken at rare intervals by the voice of the preacher. It is not simply the day time uproar of business hours, it increases steadily from nightfall until dawn. In olden days the sereno, with his dark lantern, his pike, pistol, bunch of keys, whistle and rope, wandered through the streets calling out the time and the state of weather every half hour. His efforts would be wasted nowadays.

The long-seasoned inhabitants seem to have grown callous to the constant turbulence. I have yet to meet a newcomer who confesses to an unbroken hour of sleep. If you move out to one of the pensions of Vedado, the household itself will keep you constantly reminded that you are still in Havana. The Cubans seem to thrive on noise. If they are so unfortunate as to be denied their beloved din, they lose no time in producing another from their own throats. After a week in Havana we took ferry across the harbor and strolled along the plain behind Cabana fortress. For some time we were aware of an indefinable sensation of strangeness, amounting almost to discomfort. We had covered a mile or more before we suddenly discovered that it was due to the unaccustomed silence.—Century Magazine.

DISHES NOT ALL SHE'D DO

School Teacher Made Her Position Quite Plain to the Man of Her Choice.

She is a schoolteacher, who is anxious to marry, and he is a bashful restaurant owner. For three years she has dined at his restaurant and at some time during every meal he has come to her table to talk to her. But he never suggested any sort of engagement. Yet from the expression in his eyes and his general demeanor she has long been sure that he cares for her. "All he needs is just a little help," her best friend told her the other day.

A few days afterward when she was in the restaurant he came to her table as usual. "I see you'll soon be out of a job," he laughed, and added: "Since your school is going to close Friday you might answer that," and he pointed to a sign on his wall reading "Dishwasher wanted." "Would you wash dishes for me?" he continued.

Back came the reply: "Yes, and cook and sweep and keep house in every way."

He took the hint. Also she is going to quit teaching for all time.—Indianapolis News.

Check on the Milkman.

With the aid of an apparatus recently devised by Julius Horvet of the Minneapolis dairy and food commission, it is going to be possible within the space of a very few minutes to state just how long the wily dealer in trick milk has worked the pump handle, or allowed the product of the dairy to remain unprotected in the April showers.

The cryoscope, as the new apparatus is called, works on the basis of the difference in freezing point between water and milk; and it will determine infallibly whether the consumer is receiving pure milk or watered milk, or pure water to which a little milk has been added.—James Anderson, in Scientific American.

Public Benefactor Dead.

The inventor of the ice-cream soda—Robert McCay Green—recently died in Philadelphia. While exhibiting at the Franklin Institute exposition in Philadelphia two years before the centennial, Mr. Green, to get ahead of a competitor, conceived the idea of mixing the ice cream with the soda, and before the close of the exposition his receipts were more than $200 a day.

Measuring Distance in Turkey.

In Constantinople you ask: "How far is it to the consulate?" and they answer: "About ten minutes." "How far is it to Lloyd George's agency?" "Quarter of an hour." "How far to the lower bridge?" "Four minutes." I cannot be positive about it, but I think that there, when a man orders a pair of pantaloons, he says he wants them a quarter of a minute in the legs and nine seconds around the waist.—From "Moments With Mark Twain" (Harpers).

Classifying the Dog.
